Naval Ship USS Charles R. Ware reunion group to visit Cape May

CAPE MAY - John Bailey has invited his ship's reunion group to visit Cape May this Nov. 11 to 14. The USS Charles R. Ware (DD-865) crewmen meet every year at different locations. They are planning a memorial service for their departed members at Sunset Beach on Saturday, Nov. 14 at 4:15 pm.

The ceremony will include an Invocation and Benediction by Fr. Miles J Barrett CDR CHC USN, Commanding Chaplain of the Coast Guard Training Center. A 2-person uniformed Coast Guard flag detail will lower the casket flag of the group's shipmate Ralph Siegers, fold and present it to his widow, Minnie Siegers, while the ship's bugler, Jerry Alperstein plays taps. The crew extends an invitation for the public to join them.

The ship carried the name of Lieutenant Charles Rollins Ware, USN, who lost his life June 4, 1942, during the battle of Midway. He flew off the flight deck of the USS Enterprise (CV-6) with Scouting Squadron 6 on that fateful day. Only two members of the Squadron returned to the Enterprise after the battle. No one ever found Lt. Ware's Douglas Dauntless dive bomber. The ship's roster listed both him and his gunner ARM1c (Air Radioman first class) William H. Stambaugh as missing in action. The Navy posthumously awarded Ware the Navy Cross for his "heroism in pressing home his attack on the Japanese fleet in the face of fierce enemy fighter opposition and formidable anti-aircraft fire."

To further honor Ware's heroism, the Navy named the Gearing Class destroyer, number 865 after him. Bethlehem Steel Corporation of Staten Island, NY, built the ship. Ware's mother, Alva Zena Ware, christened the vessel on July 21, 1945, at the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

World War II ended within two months after her commissioning, too late for her to join in the fight. She never fired her guns in anger until she received orders to go on the gun line of Yankee Station off of North Vietnam in 1967. Her crew considers her a lucky ship as she never received a scratch during weeks of combat under fire at that station, despite being bracketed several times. John is proud to have been with the Vietnam crew.

On March 6, 1962, after a complete upgrade, she left the Brooklyn Navy Yard and sailed straight into the Ash Wednesday Storm of 1962 that devastated the entire east coast. The storm practically destroyed Cape May, ripping up its entire boardwalk and demolishing its original Convention Hall.

At the same time, the crew of the untested rebuilt Ware was right off shore from Cape May fighting for their lives and their ship. They managed to keep her afloat and she limped into Norfolk for repairs under the amazed gaze of every sailor in port.

She participated in the Cuban Missile Crisis in October 1962, where her crew boarded and inspected Russian cargo vessels. She roamed the seas on several Cold War missions throughout the 60s and early 70s.

In the summer of 1974, while serving as a Naval Reserve training ship in Galveston, Texas, she maneuvered too close to an anchor buoy and her screw became entangled in its anchor chain. The damage was too severe for repairs, so the Navy decommissioned the Ware on November 30, 1974. On November 15, 1981, a US Navy warship fired a missile that struck her amidships sending her to the bottom at 21 degrees N, 62 degrees W. She rests in the Puerto Rico Trough, the deepest part of the Atlantic Ocean, being 30,246 feet deep. The 36-year career of the USS Charles R. Ware (DD-865) ended as she slipped beneath the waves.

Following the sinking, a small group of shipmates got together and swore to keep the memory of their ship alive. They held their first reunion in 1991 and have met annually ever since. They meet in a different city each year, except every third year they meet in Athens, Tenn.

Lt. Charles Ware joined the Navy in Athens on June 14, 1929, so the City of Athens considers itself the Ware's Final Home Port; and has invited the crew to return every third year. The crew has erected a monument in their Veteran's Park commemorating the ship and the man.

The McMinn County Museum, in Athens, houses an entire wing devoted to the Ware. It contains memorabilia from the ship, including its commissioning plaque, bunks, uniforms, holiday dinner menus, Ware's sword, and two three-foot long models of the ship that the group commissioned.

The crewmen fondly refer to their ship variously as: the Chargin' Charlie, the Charlie R, or just simply the Ware. Two years ago, at the crew's Boston reunion, John Bailey invited his shipmates to Cape May for their 2009 reunion. They voted, almost unanimously, for Cape May.

Please join them at Sunset Beach on Saturday as they remember their own.

HONORING THE DEDICATION OF THE CREW
MEMBERS OF THE USS CHARLES R. WARE (DD-865)

Whereas, during a distinguished 36-year career, the USS Charles R. Ware (DD-865) served with distinction during the Cuban Missile Crisis and the Vietnam War, as well as several Cold War missions throughout the 1960s and early 1970s; and

Whereas, the "Chargin Charlie" sailed straight into and survived the perfect storm known as the Ash Wednesday Storm of 1962 which was practically destroying the City of Cape May at the same time; and

Whereas, for the past 19 years, dedicated crew members who have served on the "Charlie R" have conducted annual reunions to keep the memory of their gallant ship alive; and

Whereas, the reunion attendees have forged an unbreakable bond among themselves and their families which represents the strong character and heroism of Lieutenant Charles Rollins Ware, USN;

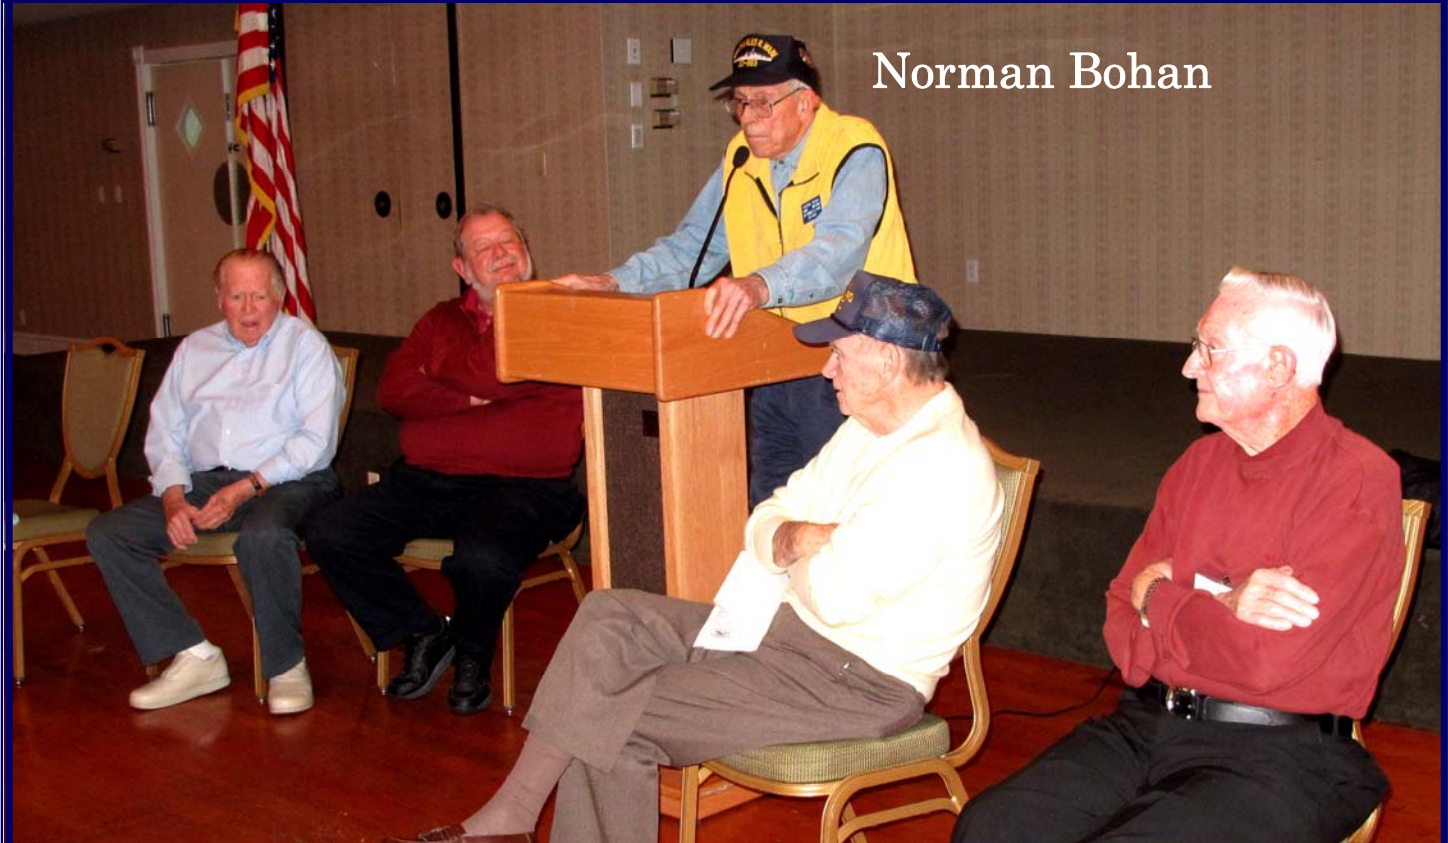

Now, therefore, I, Dr. Edward J. Mahaney, Jr., by the virtue of the authority vested in me as Mayor, on behalf of the entire City Council, do hereby extend to the crew members of the USS Charles R. Ware (DD-865) our deep appreciate for their distinguished military service and our gratitude for the freedom and liberty which they have assured for us.

In Witness Therefore, I do hereby cause the Corporate Seal of the City of Cape May to be affixed this 12th day of November 2009.

Dr. Edward J. Mahaney, Jr.
